Click here to watch a video of the making of the University of Phoenix stadium.

- The stadium was designed to be a multi-purpose facility with the ability to host football, basketball, soccer, concerts, consumer shows, motor sports, rodeos and corporate events.
- Designed by world-renowned architect Peter Eisenman, in conjunction with HOK Sport, Hunt Construction Group and Urban Earth Design.
- The exterior skin represents a barrel cactus.
- The building features alternating sections of shimmering metal panels intended to reflect the shifting desert light alongside magnificent vertical glass slots allowing patrons a spectacular view of the horizon from any level of the exterior. There are 21 vertical slots on the exterior wall of the stadium.

Operational Advantages & Features

- Encompasses 1.7 million square feet of space.
- Features the first fully retractable natural grass playing field in North America.
- Slab on grade with utility floor boxes spaced on 30 x 60 increments throughout stadium floor.
- Direct stadium floor access for consumer and trade show event patrons.
- Restroom and attendee amenities on floor and exhibit hall level.
- Fully air conditioned.
- 14,000 on-site parking spaces, 11,500 adjacent spaces.
- Conveniently located off the Loop 101, only 15 minutes from downtown Phoenix

Funding & Economic Impact

- The cost of the stadium was approximately $455 million.
- The construction phase added 3,500 jobs and $400 million in economic benefits to the area.
- The Tostitos Fiesta Bowl contributes approximately $115.8 million each year in economic impact to the state of Arizona. The city of Glendale will host a semi-final college game at the University of Phoenix Stadium at least every other year, with bid opportunities for the national championship game.
- Super Bowl XLII in Glendale in 2008 was seen by 97.5 million people in the U.S. alone.
- On game days there will be more than 3,000 employees on site, ranging from event, team, facility, catering and concessions, security, and housekeeping operations and services.

Fun Facts

- The stadium seats, if set in a straight line, would stretch for approximately 18 miles or the equivalent of 111 football fields.
- The amount of concrete used on the stadium is equal to 900 miles of sidewalk, the distance between Glendale and San Francisco.
- The stadium air-conditioning system generates 8,000 tons of cooling capacity, enough to cool 2,300 residential homes in Glendale.
- Two massive “thermometers” at the south end zone gauge crowd noise. The north end zone bridge displays photos of past players.
- There are six levels in the stadium: the field or service level, the main concourse, the club level, the suite level, the upper concourse and the mechanical level.
- Five layers of Arizona-themed murals usher fans through the stadium escalators. A mural is depicted on each level, each designed to represent Arizona’s environmental attractions. The 400 level, the highest in the stadium, replicates the night sky and has the names of state observatories on it. The rest spotlight state rivers, canyons, deserts and mountain ranges.
- The stadium includes 88 luxury lofts featuring preferred parking, an exclusive entrance, private restrooms, multiple televisions, in-suite catering and a bold, modern interior design unlike any other suites in the industry.
- The luxurious Club Level features wider seats, preferred parking, private entrances, climate controlled club lounges with multiple two-story spaces, comfortable seating, numerous TV monitors, upgraded food and beverage offerings and dedicated restrooms.

The Field

- The grass field rolls out of the stadium on an 18.9 million pound tray, residing outside of the stadium except for football and soccer events, is the first of its kind in North America.
- The grass field remains outside the stadium in the sun until game day getting the maximum amount of sunshine and nourishment, eliminating humidity problems inside the stadium and providing unrestricted access to the stadium floor for events and staging.
- The stadium is situated along a slight northwest to southeast axis for maximum sun exposure for field in the outboard position.
- Having the rollout field saves $50 million in costs since it is more economical to move the field than having the entire roof retract daily to allow the necessary sunshine to reach the grass.
- The roll out turf travels at a speed of 11.5 feet/minute (1/8 mph); and takes approximately 75 minutes to travel approximately 741 feet.
- The field is 234 feet wide x 403 feet long and 39 inches tall.
- Field tray rests on 13 rail tracks and moves in and out of the stadium on 546 steel wheel assemblies (42 rows).
- 76 of the wheel sets are powered by a one-horsepower motor (total = 76 hp).
- The field will support approximately 94,000 square feet (over 2 acres) of natural grass.
- The grass is Tifway-419, a Bermuda hybrid. It was planted by using stolons, or plugs, that provide the best long-term field conditions.
- The tray has a sophisticated irrigation system that works on timers and can be customized. The water drains through a 1-inch-deep mat and several pipes that lead to a main drainpipe underneath the field tray.
- A few inches of water remains in the tray while the field is in play to keep the grass moist.

The Roof

- The translucent “Bird-Air” fabric roof allows the stadium to have an open, airy feel even when the roof is closed. The roof has two large retractable panels that uncover the entire playing field while providing maximum shading for fans. The roof can be closed and the facility air conditioned in the hot months, while the roof can be opened to take advantage of the Valley’s world-famous climate in cooler months.
- Each roof panel weighs 550 tons.
- The roof is supported by two 700-foot-long trusses.
- Each truss is 87 feet high at its tallest point and weighs about 1,800 tons.
- The top of the roof is 206 feet above grade.

Surrounding the Facility

- The stadium occupies more than 25 acres, including the parking lots
- Included in the parking lot is an eight acre landscaped area located on the southwest side of the facility called Sportsman’s Park.
- The Glendale Youth Sports Complex is also located on the property.
- The stadium is located in Glendale’s Sports & Entertainment District, which includes Jobing.com Arena, home to the NHL Coyotes, and Westgate Entertainment District, a master-planned, mixed-use retail, entertainment and commercial development.
